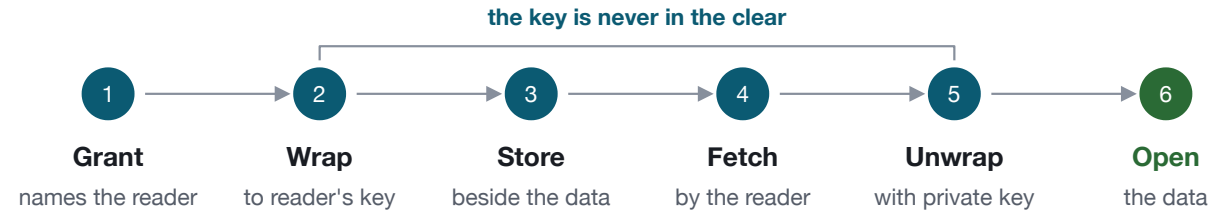
Only the named reader can ever open the key



The private key never leaves the reader's device, so a copy of the stored key opens nothing.

A stolen copy of the stored key is useless without the reader's private key.